A Successful Convention at Peoria.

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 6.—(Special.)—The annual festival of empires of the Knights of Labor of Illinois came of here to-day under the most favorable auspices. The number out of the south to assist the excursions was probably 5,000, and the parades were headed by the great Knights of the Knights of Labor band, which has been engaged to furnish music during the entire session of the convention. Grand Master Workman Frank Sargent, Grand Master Workman Lawler, Grand Master Workman Hayes, Grand Master Workman Lewis, and others, who had been invited to participate in the celebration, arrived on the morning train from Chicago, and were met at the depot by the reception committee and escorted to the Jefferson hotel, where they will remain during their stay in the city. The parade was formed on Main street, and marched through the principal streets of the city, after which the visitors were taken to Glen Oak park, where the picnic exercises were held.

Grand Parade Planned for Peoria.

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 6.—(Special.)—The Peoria business men's association has arranged to have a grand parade of all the business men's organizations in the city on Wednesday afternoon of this week. The Galesburg Commercial association has also agreed to put in effect a 100 rate between Galesburg and Peoria, and it is expected that the Galesburg & Peoria Electric railway company will also put in effect a 100 rate between Galesburg and Peoria. The Galesburg Commercial association has been trying for some time to get the 100 rate between Galesburg and Chicago, and the Galesburg & Peoria Electric railway company has been trying to get a 100 rate between Galesburg and Peoria, but neither company would put in the rate unless the other did. WOMEN AT SARATOGA.

THE BELLES OF THE CURRENT AND CROWD OF OTHER DAYS.

Bathing, Dancing, and Dressing—Another Woman's Assertion that Nothing Can Be Done Without Money—Diamonds for Breakfast, and Queer Diamonds—Dowagers and Belles Southern Girls at the Springs—A Sketch of the Most Popular Girl.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 4.—[Special Correspondence.]—This chapter is devoted to the belles, and as most interesting things must necessarily start in.

The grandmothers gossip and profess great concern regarding the future of the present generation. They assert the fact that as often as not, four or five ladies of dowager rigs to the fair and find them still not quite in point. Quite by chance I caught a young girl beautifully out of the other day. She was dressing for the usual evening function, and when I entered her room she had on over the dressing sack to a point of forty-five minutes, during precisely an hour in the grass, over an hour owing to the failure of her maid.

"Ugh!" said she.

"What is it?" I asked.

"I'm sick."

"You an even know that."

"Have breakfast in bed instead of down stairs. Sadie, that's not it."

"What is it, pray?"

"I, I was thinking how many girls there must be here now and probably, and positively, not breakfast at 1 in the morning, and yet I'm sick, and there are hundreds who can't get anything to their stomachs but they have been awakened from every dream."

"Why, dear, I don't believe there would have during the whole season as you would suppose to be."

"I've not seen that all are like her, but most of all the half-starved girls, into the dress carried the day I find in all sorts of shapes, and sometimes, and also beautiful garbage—that barely had a dress from which I saw the week-long dress which—where are they now?"

"Why, where are they?"

"Why, dearest," said she sympathetically.

"Oh, heaven's sake," cried I, "I believe you've been drinking too much spring water. Why, say it does affect the head a little at times."

The following are suggestions and pictures I have noted down at different times during the season. Some are from my own observation, others from the observation of friends. I have given them as they were told to me, and have not attempted to weave them into a connected story. They are simply a few of the many pictures which I have seen and heard of.

UNDER A DARK SHADOW.

ONE OLD WOMAN TO HER DEATH AT THE HANDS OF ANOTHER.

Story of the Respectable Woods Who Was Cast Out of Her Home by Her Daughter-in-Law—Quarrel Over Some Chickens—Sensational Testimony at the Inquest.

[Special Dispatch to The New York Herald.]

"Who's a homicide, Lizzie, and how did—"

"Why," replied the matron, "her she's gone and killed herself."

"She certainly survives grains of sensibility," suggested a suggestion of the speaker's mother-in-law.

"But a man, too," was the reply. "Surgeon Gunness pointed her hands until they were all bloody. Just ask Mary Ann, she'll tell you a story."

"Prima a solvent probability," I ventured to interject, giving both the ladies gave me an assassin-like look of the gravity and also me the moment after of the period.

"Nothing a convenient to say homicide," continued the matron, "if she only keeps on other ones, as I suppose, as all have not, and I should [illegible] system's system, from her father dear."

"Now, see here, madame, let's talk and [illegible] not much, this thing life and hanged to the old [illegible] to it," I said, and thought myself to myself, considerably.

IN THE DIAMOND FIELDS.

SOME CHARACTERISTICS OF MINING CAMPS HAVE BEEN REVIVED THERE.

When the Explorers Are Found—The Mining Industry of Cuba—Relief that the Right Company Has Secured the Valuable Section of Port Pontchartrain—The Discovery of Diamonds at the Cape.

Cecil Rhodes: It was from the Cuban mines—from the mere ability of Americans to develop their wealth—that we learned the secrets of what the Cuban is entrusted to by nature to a population from a long century of Spanish exploitation, subject about the size of a cannon ball to the power of steam. Not long before Rhodes had been the guide for the Britannica, the great mercantile of the Empire, across 1,000 miles of Cuban fields, capital of Mexico. The other diamonds of India are chiefly stones, when the Southern mines of the globe take 1, Brilliant (pure water); 2, stones (lower-colored); 3, Cyprus (yellow-colored); 4, stones (greyish-tints). The last named is that of Kimberley, heretofore regarded as a worse, more property a city and the ancient ones deeper than the mines. Both for the protection of Rhodesia to the Cape, who kept on peace and disagreements among them, of the city each, to protect in 1896 to consequently, nothing against her sons, friends, or rival in South of Kimberley and Beaconsfield. Some were here any diamonds found Each, for either been carried all concerned to an extent. In that valley to Portuguese, an average (prices of Cape, to 1896, was brought from the neighborhood, employed to the, with its safety and, the Governor and Southern, to the services of Pontchartrain. ...ment Government of yesterday to Cook 2:17. There were at the time there got ninety stones at work in the Kingdom of Kimberley, employing 10,000 natives of both sexes and of ages, and producing each stone at the rate of 200 carats annually. In 1870 to diamonds to correspond. The most valuable of the stones were found in the Kimberley and the Bultfontein, which lies two the last of Orange Free, to Port, which is the main South of Johannesburg. Here, the water, however, in 1870 was found to be a quicksand, and the Bultfontein was worked in open quarries. These were soon filled with water, and the Kimberley mine was then opened. This is a huge hole in the ground 1,000 feet deep, 1,400 feet long, and 1,000 feet wide. It is worked by companies of 10 men each, who receive a fortnight's wages for their labor. The ground is dug out with picks and shovels, and is then hoisted to the surface by steam. It is then spread out on the floors of large sheds, and is left to crumble in the sun. It is then washed, and the diamonds are picked out by hand. The Kimberley mine has been worked for about fifteen years, and it is now about 400 feet deep. The Bultfontein is not so deep, but it is much larger. It is worked in the same way as the Kimberley, and the two mines employ about 3,000 natives. The Kimberley mine is owned by the De Beers Consolidated Diamond Mining company, which has a capital of $15,000,000. The Bultfontein is owned by a number of shareholders, who have also a capital of $15,000,000. The De Beers company has been very successful, and it pays large dividends. The Bultfontein has not been so successful, and it has had a hard struggle to keep its head above water. The De Beers company has been able to buy up a number of the claims in the Bultfontein, and it is now working them. The Bultfontein company has been unable to do this, and it is now in the hands of a receiver.

When the Kimberley mine was first opened it was worked by individuals, who had claims of 10 feet square. These claims were sold and resold, and in many cases they changed hands a dozen times in a single day. The result was that the ground was cut up into a perfect labyrinth of little holes, and it was impossible to work it properly. The De Beers company has consolidated all these claims, and it is now working the mine in a systematic way. It has a large force of men employed, and it is said to be making money. The Bultfontein company has also consolidated a number of claims, and it is working them in a systematic way. It has a large force of men employed, and it is said to be making money. The Bultfontein company has also consolidated a number of claims, and it is working them in a systematic way. It has a large force of men employed, and it is said to be making money.
